Fairy Tales are stories involving fantastic forces, usually good versus evil, most originating in folklore, mythology, and legend. They feature fantasy beings like dragons, dwarfs, fairies and talking animals. They aren't just for kids. In fact, many are complex morality tales; some are graphic or morbid, and shouldn't be read to children at all.

[on the making of Highlander (1986)] For the scene we did in the church there could have been a wonderful dialogue - "God, this doesn't compare to the Greek Orthodox Church", or "I liked it better when they did it in Latin", or any type of thing. There's all sorts of twists that could have been done. I like the little twists like that because they make the audience think.

"When I arrived at WPOC in Baltimore they had a morning team of Rocky Marlowe and Laurie
DeYoung. When Rocky's contract wasn't renewed we hired Bill Bailey to be Laurie's new partner. What looked like great creative conflict on paper -- male/female, young/old, liberal/conservative -- didn't work out so well on the air.
